Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of the course, students should be able to:

Knowledge and understanding

- outline ideas and cultural traditions, social structures, the life of learning, the building of the Swedish welfare state ('folkhemmet'), development of gender equality policies and political, social and cultural movements, ideologies and debates in Sweden in the 19-20th centuries,

Competence and skills

- identify the use of concepts, ideas and structures of thought in primary sources and place them in an intellectual history context,
- formulate and delimit research-related problems and seek relevant information to address them,

Judgement and approach

- apply history of ideas approaches through comparing and contextualising different ideas and structures of thought in the past as well as in relation to the present, and
- relate Swedish identity and self-image to a Nordic, European and global context and reflect on these from historical and theoretical perspectives,
- relate to Swedish historiography and reflect on it from different power perspectives, and
- assess and discuss the research situation in the field of Swedish history of ideas.

Content

The course provides a historical survey of ideas, culture and science in Sweden in its European context with a focus on the 1800s-1900s. Especially treated are the emergence of modern Sweden, which includes social movements, expansion of education and science systems, democratisation, the welfare state, political and cultural ideologies and debates, equality policy and Sweden in the globalised world. The module is research-based and reverberates with issues of history-consciousness, historiography and the use of history.

Instruction is in the form of lectures, presenting essential content, and mandatory seminars on course content in the light of course literature, in which students discuss their understanding orally and in writing.

Reading List
