Results of learning

All in all, the course was valuable for me.

Courses that were considered valuable were related to personal development, acquisition of new knowledge and skills, understanding of something. Higher ratings can refer to students' perceived development (learned a lot, and it was useful). Lower ratings can refer to scanty development of knowledge and skills or not understanding certain themes or their parts, not understanding the necessity and significance of the course, problems in the learning environment.

Net Promoter Score (NPS) = 100

Promoters = 2 (100%)

Passives = 0 (0%)

Detractors = 0 (0%)

The Net Promoter Score (NPS) is a metric that measures student experience and predicts the effectiveness of a course. It calculates an NPS score based on a key question using a 0-10 scale, asking how likely students would recommend the course to others. Respondents are grouped into Promoters, Passives, or Detractors based on their score, and the NPS is calculated by subtracting the percentage of Detractors from the percentage of Promoters. The NPS is a core metric for course evaluation programs and is trusted by educational institutions to engage their students and improve their learning experience performance.

Course supervisor's comments

I am genuinely pleased and - given my exceptionally high overall workload this term - relieved to see that students continue to express appreciation and gratitude for the course and their learning experience, and I would like to take this opportunity to thank my colleagues Luke and Saga once again for providing continuous feedback and guidance on our students' online reflection assignments. It remains to be seen whether this standard can be maintained in the spring since I am going to have to manage without their assistance.
