Course supervisor's comments

It is nice to hear that all the students have learned new things during their work at the master thesis. Points of improvements on the students side (besides acquiring timely the needed mathematical skills) are: better attention to time management, early training in academic writing, and programming (personal soft skills). Special care needs to be taken when interacting with the thesis supervisors. Here the responsibility of the success of the communication is shared. Planning ahead of the meetings is needed.
