Results of learning

All in all, the course was valuable for me.

Courses that were considered valuable were related to personal development, acquisition of new knowledge and skills, understanding of something. Higher ratings can refer to students' perceived development (learned a lot, and it was useful). Lower ratings can refer to scanty development of knowledge and skills or not understanding certain themes or their parts, not understanding the necessity and significance of the course, problems in the learning environment.

Net Promoter Score (NPS) = NaN

Promoters = 0 (NaN%)

Passives = 0 (NaN%)

Detractors = 0 (NaN%)

The Net Promoter Score (NPS) is a metric that measures student experience and predicts the effectiveness of a course. It calculates an NPS score based on a key question using a 0-10 scale, asking how likely students would recommend the course to others. Respondents are grouped into Promoters, Passives, or Detractors based on their score, and the NPS is calculated by subtracting the percentage of Detractors from the percentage of Promoters. The NPS is a core metric for course evaluation programs and is trusted by educational institutions to engage their students and improve their learning experience performance.

Course supervisor's comments

No survey responses this time, but the course went according to plan, students attend more regularly and consistently again after the post-pandemic dip mentioned in previous analyses and were generally pleased and grateful in our classroom interaction and Canvas/mail correspondence. After many years of diligent and loyal service to both ENG A1E and ENG AT1, Luke Bailey has now retired and I am pleased to announce that another highly esteemed colleague of mine has been allocated hours to help maintain the levels of continuous teacher input on these courses.

As part of the UPE course 'Skapa en tillgänglig lärmiljö' (STL-2511), I have also made the following updates to ENG A1E:

- A course-specific 'How to get started in Canvas' front page (see enclosed screen capture)
- More consistent use of hierarchy tools in documents and tables to facilitate text-to-speech synthesis
- All course material checked and compliant with the built-in Accessibility Assistant
- Increased colour contrast in all presentation slides and templates
