Analysis based on course evaluation, including comments fields. If information has been collected in other ways, it should also be analysed here. Any effect of joint courses should be commented on.

The course seems to work well based on the responses received. The course's integration between humanism and psychology as well as the literature and the examinations were highlighted as a quality here. Possibly several elements can be included as several experienced the work effort as low. The distance arrangement and the examinations are appreciated.

Suggestions for changes to the next course date.

Changes are planned for autumn 23 in line with a revised syllabus and thus not a specific result of this evaluation.
