I acknowledge that there were some typos on my hand written notes, that I tried to correct them and upload the updated version as soon as I spotted them. I have been also quite approachable to the students and I tried to answer all their questions during the class but also via email.

I also acknowledge that some information regarding a question in the exam paper was missing but as soon as realised (within the first half an hour of the exam) I went to the exam venues and provided the students the missing information. To compensate I gave the students extra time.

Suggestions for changes to the next course date.

Next year I intend to revise my lecture notes by adding more solved examples as well as providing the students with more practising questions (including answers) from the English textbook.

I would also prepare the revision class by solving in advance all the suggested questions

I would also revise the exam paper more carefully.
