Analysis based on course evaluation, including comments fields. If information has been collected in other ways, it should also be analysed here. Any effect of joint courses should be commented on.

This is a course where students need to be self-motivated for getting involved in reading new (for them) mathematical topics and for doing independent work. I noticed difficulties with scientific writing matters which become prominent when students had to write their report.

Suggestions for changes to the next course date.

No specific changes are foreseen.
