Analysis based on course evaluation, including comments fields. If information has been collected in other ways, it should also be analysed here. Any effect of joint courses should be commented on.

Student's evaluation is a very mixed bag of positive and negative, so the evaluating discussions towards the end of the course are important from a teacher's perspective. We struggled this term with an unusually large group of participants, which also meant that seminars and discussions in lectures were unusually vibrant and rewarding.

Suggestions for changes to the next course date.

The approach to the literature in discussions and lectures will be adjusted to better fit the size of the group.

1. Number of first registrations for a course: First registration = the first time a student registers for a specific course.
