should also be analysed here. Any effect of joint courses should be commented on.

An additional course evaluation was performed on paper during the last meeting with the students. In that evaluation all registered students gave feedback. The evaluation has questions specifically tailored to this course to collect feedback on the different course parts, workloads, examination approaches and tools used in the course. Comments received here included some lab handin time collisions with the other concurrent course.

Suggestions for changes to the next course date.

As the course will be moved to autumn instead of spring term, time collisions with the concurrent course will be resolved without need for further action.

1. Number of first registrations for a course: First registration = the first time a student registers for a specific course.
