Analysis based on course evaluation, including comments fields. If information has been collected in other ways, it should also be analysed here. Any effect of joint courses should be commented on.

It is not easy to draw conclusions from only four responses from 24 participants. Still, the present and the oral evaluation showed that students appreciated the course structure and the assignments that checked the achievement of the learning objectives. In the comments, students highlighted the design of the course and the accessibility of the teachers. The guest lectures and the block on policy and regulation were particularly appreciated.

Suggestions for changes to the next course date.

Although the first (Ethics) and last (Critical Data Studies) modules are strongly connected (also in the context of the assignment), this needs to be emphasized more in the lectures and in the instructions for the group work.
