This is an online and half-time course with opportunities for participants to join seminars at different times during the day. In discussions and evaluations on Zoom, like in this anonymous assessments, students ask for more lectures and less time for seminars.

Suggestions for changes to the next course date.

We continuously revise the literature, especially the compendium with scholarly articles with the purpose of offering students up-to-date perspectives in the field of urbanity and migration. We also adjust the format, i.e., time-slots for seminars and lectures, to the size of the group and the number of attending students.
