The material is based upon scientific articles and texts composed by the lecturer(s). Everything is made available on the course webpage (Canvas) well ahead of the start of the course. The total amount of reading is approximately 50 pages per meeting, with meetings occurring on average about twice a week. Because the course is based on scientific articles and new articles come out continuously, it is impossible to estimate the extent of the course readings with any great precision each year in which the course is given.
