The programme coordinator's final analysis.

Students are still busy writing their final thesis. The corona-motivated distance supervision has probably had an hampering effect on thesis work, but it should be mentioned that nearly all students have also been busy with salaried work. One student co-wrote a conf paper during the first months of the spring based on autumn 2019 work; the paper was presented in July.

Suggestions for improvements.

The main problem for the autumn 2020 will be how to handle the temporary regulations for campus teaching. However, as some seminars for 1st semester have been on distance also previous years, it will probably not be a big problem so long as students who wants to sit in at campus on the seminars are able to do so. For the 3rd semester there are fewer students because two students from the 2019 cohort ended their studies with a 1-year Master exam.

¹ Registered programme student current cohort, no approved leave, no non-completion and registered for a course at Kau current semester.

² Number of students who have not clicked "No" - "I am not a student on the programme stated above this academic year" in the evaluation.

³ Number of students who answered at least 1 question, or commented in free text field.
